Experiment 14: ReNewMarket – Online Second-Hand Goods Marketplace

1. Aim

To design and develop an interactive online marketplace named ReNewMarket using HTML, CSS, and JavaScript that enables users to buy and sell second-hand products with features such as user management, category management, commodity management, negotiation, and order tracking.

2. Procedure

1. Create the website structure using HTML.
2. Design a responsive user interface using CSS.
3. Implement user registration, login, and account management using JavaScript.
4. Create product categories such as Electronics, Furniture, Clothing, and Collectibles.
5. Implement product listing features to add, edit, delete, and update commodity details and prices.
6. Add search, filtering, sorting, and favourites functionality for buyers.
7. Implement messaging and price negotiation between buyers and sellers.
8. Develop order management to create transactions and update logistics status to Shipped, Received, or Cancelled.
9. Create an administrator dashboard to manage users, categories, commodities, and orders.
10. Use browser localStorage to store and retrieve application data.
11. Test all functionalities using a web browser.

3. Code Snippet

HTML – Product Listing

```
<article class="item">
   🎧

    <h3>Wireless Headphones</h3>
    Good condition, clear sound quality.
    ₹1,800
    <button onclick="listingDetails('RM101')">
      View Details
    </button>
```

```

</article>
```

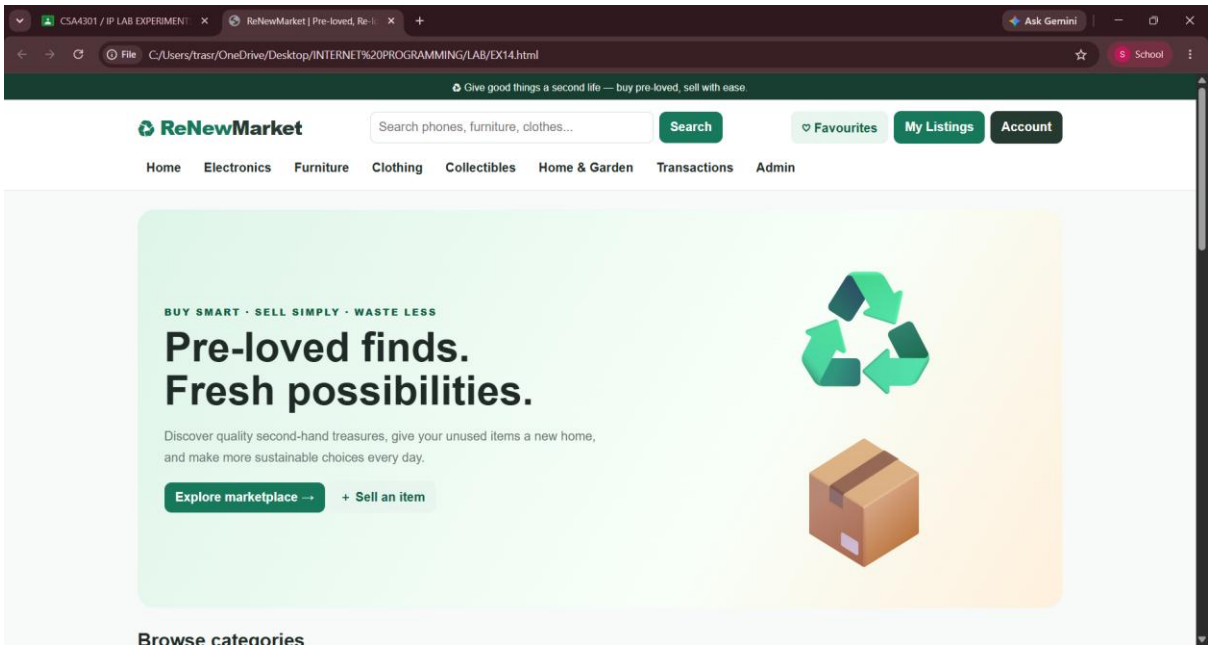

JavaScript – Update Order Status

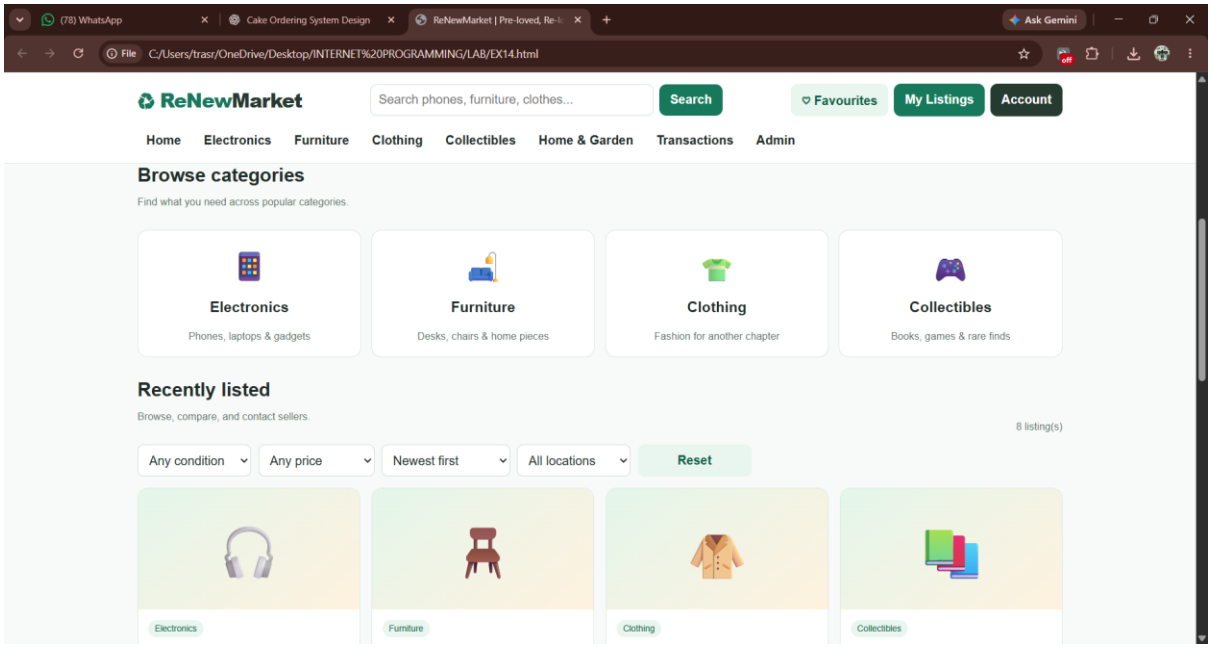

```
function updateLogistics(id, status) {
    let order = db.orders.find(o => o.id === id);

    if (order) {
        order.status = status;
        saveDB();

        toast("Logistics status updated");
    }
}
```
